Robert,
No problem at all! Things have been busy for us, that's why we handed the story off to Peter.

Thanks,
Alex

Alex, it's a good thing your colleague Pete Zampa spoke with us in the past few days, as your e-mail ended up in my junk folder. I have no idea why, but this was the case for several, though not all, media queries I received between Tuesday and Sunday. I hope this problem has now been fixed.

I want you to know I was not ignoring your e-mail. I hope all's well with you.

Robert,

Thanks for speaking with me a few moments ago.

As I mentioned, we're looking to do a story related to the Animas River contamination. It would be great to get some information on what the EPA is doing to protect US waterways from contamination to prevent what happened in Colorado from happening again. Also looking to see what the consequences would be for a company or organization that creates a similar contamination.

We're actually hoping to get this story out tomorrow. I'm sure things are busy, but if there's any chance for an on-camera interview or even a quick phone interview we would really appreciate it.

Thank you!

Alex
